

Edmonton Tangle Before Commission

Winnipeg, July 16.—At a session of the Railway Commission here today two applications affecting Edmonton one from the C.P.R. and the other by the G.T.P., were considered. Mr. T. J. Ryan, G.T.P. agent, stated that the application of the latter was for the privilege of a road north of and the other through Edmonton, the north line being perhaps three miles longer than the southerly one, but the commission might abandon the application on the northern line and ask leave to construct the other as a branch line, the distance between them being about four miles. The C.P.R. has a double track, the G.T.P. has a single track, the latter being perhaps three miles longer than the southerly one, but the commission might abandon the application on the northern line and ask leave to construct the other as a branch line, the distance between them being about four miles. Fog May Delay Laurier

Ottawa, July 16.—Lieut.-Col. Anderson, of the Marine Department, who has just returned to Ottawa after a tour of inspection of the government marine and signal stations on the Gulf of St. Lawrence and coast, reports that the fog in the Gulf at present are unusually dense and this may possibly delay the arrival of the ship at Quebec of the steamer, Empress of Britain, with Sir Wilfrid Laurier on board and disarrange the programme for the reception at Quebec and Montreal. According to present arrangements, the government steamer, Lady Grey, with the ministerial party on board will leave Quebec on Friday morning to meet Sir Wilfrid at Grosse Ile station and bring him on to Quebec. After the reception at Quebec Sir Wilfrid will embark on the government steamer, Empress, and the rest of the party will board the Lady Grey leaving Quebec about 2 a.m. Saturday morning.

The story as set forth in the proceedings is that John Henry, who is charged with stealing his wife's affections, the story as set forth in the proceedings is that John Henry, who is charged with stealing his wife's affections, the story as set forth in the proceedings is that John Henry, who is charged with stealing his wife's affections.

Big Mine Purchases

Dawson City, Y.T., July 16.—It is reported that the Guggenheim Exploration company has purchased all of the placer mines in the Yukon district. Huge dredges and machinery, constructed in Vancouver, have already been shipped and are ready for immediate service.

It will not be long before active dredging will be in operation. It will mark the day of the shortening of individual mining on creeks, this kind of mining in competition with the electrical dredges being almost impossible. Dredges that handle 3,000 cubic yards of earth every twenty-four hours at an approximate cost of $100 per day, and requiring the employment of only thirteen men, appeals to the individual, and he is often willing to turn his claim over for even a modest sum.

The commissioners of the Guggenheim firm have done a great deal of close bargaining in obtaining control of the placer ground on Bonanza, Eldorado, Hunker and other creeks, for it will cost enormous sums of money to equip the properties and to dredge sufficient ground to yield an equitable return on the investment; the dredges have received far less than they asked, the highest cash offer being $80,000. Many miners are willing to sell at a discount rather than take chances of losing in the creek, $5,000 to $25,000 cash appeals strongly to the individual miner, who would have a hard time to get an equal amount through his own efforts.

In a few instances miners have struck it rich with pick and shovel and hydraulic giant during several months work, but the majority make only living wages. Ordinary labor costs $4.00 a day and board, skilled mechanics earn $5 and $7 and board, heavy labor is estimated at $2.00 a day, a cash offer from the Guggenheim agents is tempting to the average miner.

The production of gold in the Yukon district increased from $300,000 in 1886 to $2,275,000 in 1900, declining yearly to $187,500 in 1905. For eleven years from 1896 to 1906, the production totalled $12,844,363.

This will keep him till American officials can prepare extradition.

A Fiery Descent

New York, July 16.—Eugene Raymond, a young aeronaut of this city, involuntarily played the part of a human sky rocket, at Belleville, N. Y., yesterday, when the flash light powder in the imitation cannon, out of which he is shot from a balloon, became ignited and set fire to his clothing. When he let go the wind flamed and he had the choice of hanging on and being burnt or letting go of the parachute and being dashed to pieces. When he reached the ground his clothing was ablaze, his hair and eyebrows burnt off, and his skin blistered. He is in the hospital.

Medicine Hat's Turn Last Night

Medicine Hat, July 16.—A complete reversal of form was shown in the game here last night, when the home team scored six runs and completely shut out Edmonton. Great pitching by Hollis kept a long way towards bringing about the downfall of the Capitals, and he received the very best support in the field. Blearud for Edmonton was also there with the goods, but unfortunately for him the hitters were in their best batting form.

Government Control The Only Remedy

Farmers Can See No Other Way To Improve Beef Prices.

The first witness before the commission in Edmonton yesterday, was Mr. Wm. Vogel, manager of the Vogel Packing Co., Strathcona, a company which he declared is strictly an independent concern, and is in no trust or combine. Last year his packing house utilized 9,000 hogs; the product which is sold in the towns along the C.N.R. and C. & E. He obtains his supply exclusively in this district.

Mr. Vogel submitted a schedule of prices paid by his firm during 1906 as follows:—
May 1st to 18th, 6¢.
May 18 to Oct. 23rd, 6¢.
Oct. 23 to Nov. 16, 6¢.
Nov. 16 to Nov. 28, 6¢.
Nov. 28 to Dec. 28, 5¢ and 6¢.

These prices were for choice hogs. Rough and very heavy hogs were quoted below these prices. The prices were ruled by supply and demand. Winnipeg or Chicago quotations had no effect here. Witness sold to the trade only. His prices were from one half to a cent less than those of American products imported here.

Mr. Nolan closely examined the witness as to the reasons for fluctuations, his questions tending to a charge that an agreement existed between buyers and sellers. He said that P. Burns & Co. could not fix the price. Last year witness said he would not pay under 4¢. He thought the farmers could find a profit at that price.

Mr. F. Webb was next called. It seemed that he was engaged in handling and shipping live stock for the last six or seven years. His business was largely the shipping of hogs to Vancouver. Mr. Webb told of an experience in shipping two cars of cattle to Vancouver. He said he would never forget the treatment he received. In the first place he had great difficulty in getting cars at all. On the run he was held off at every station and made on an average nine miles an hour over the entire trip. At one place near Wetaskiwin, he was held up for eight hours to load a gravel train.

Mr. Webb stated that the bad news and accommodation afforded by the C.P.R. caused such an enormous shrinkage in the cattle that it practically wiped out any possibility of shipping at a profit. On the occasion of which he spoke his cattle lost 150 pounds apiece, and he lost money.

"Good transportation facilities and the fact that the market is the whole thing," said Mr. Webb.

Mr. Webb stated that in buying hogs the price he could get for them was fixed. His method was to handle the hogs at 1¢ per pound commission, and try to give the farmer the benefit of a narrow spread between the two prices. He attributed the sudden rise in pork this spring to the fact that the farmers were busy seeing at the time, and would not leave their plough to market their hogs. There was also a small scarcity of fat hogs this spring which was a factor. He stated that the 4¢ price named by Mr. Vogel was a starvation price for the farmer, when he was forced to pay 20¢ for the same hogs when converted into bacon by Mr. Vogel.

Mr. Webb had no specific remedy to suggest. He thought matters would gradually right themselves and expressed confidence in the new packing plant in Edmonton, which he said would create a market and establish a regular price.

D. W. Warner, ex-president of the A.P.A., related the history of his cattle deals. In 1906 he got $44 a head for cattle weighing 1,100 lbs. This spring he sold three steers for 44¢ per pound. He had other offers on the cattle. With respect to the sudden fluctuations in the price of hogs this spring, when hogs rose to 7½¢, Mr. Warner said he thought it was due to the demand for fresh meat in the city, when the farmers were busy seeding, and were unable to market their hogs. He thought that five cents was low enough to pay the farmer for the pork. It could not be raised for less. The condition of the hog industry in this province was very unsatisfactory. His remedy was government culling and packing houses to ensure competition and prevent monopoly and pooling.

With respect to the new packing plant at Edmonton, which, if it were true, was being built with American capital, he said that it was dangerous to the farmer here as there was danger the Canadian consumer being enslaved by the American beef trust. While it would be to their interest to keep the half million plant at Edmonton going, it would be infinitely more to their interests to keep their plants worth millions in American dollars.

He referred to the work of the A.P., and made the remark that it was the feeling among the farmers of the province that if the government failed to get between the people and the man who declared he would slay to death the people of the province in ten days, it would be failing far short of what any man was legitimately expected of.

Recalled, Mr. Warner in answer to questions expressed the opinion that if the farmers went into the packing business on a large scale they would injure themselves, as it would involve the loss of their farms. The witness emphasized his contention that the beef trade in Alberta was dominated by a trust which raised or lowered prices at will. He advocated government ownership or control of the meat packing industry.

W. P. Stevens, secretary of the Farmers' Association at Clover Bar, stated that he was engaged in handling and shipping live stock for the last six or seven years. His business was largely the shipping of hogs to Vancouver. Mr. Webb told of an experience in shipping two cars of cattle to Vancouver. He said he would never forget the treatment he received. In the first place he had great difficulty in getting cars at all. On the run he was held off at every station and made on an average nine miles an hour over the entire trip. CURRENT COMMENT.

"Nothing is easier when something great has been accomplished, than for the capricious critic to stand apart and point out the in-adequacies by which it has been accomplished."—Globe.

Right you are, Mr. Sky Pilot Editor, that's what makes it so easy for you to seel like a fish wife at everything the Whitney Government has done and try to belittle it at the call of your masters, Cox, Jaffray et al.

"The immigration policy of the Liberal administration is the very root-stock of our present prosperity. We owe a large part of our contemporary progress to Mr. Sifton's clear perception of the fact that wide hands and great resources were not of much use to us unless we could get in people to develop and utilize them. He addressed himself with his usual energy and keen intelligence to the problem. He treated it in the spirit and by the methods that a merchant prince or a great industrial captain brings his goods to the notice of the public. He lived in the goods he had to dispose of, and he undertook the task of making the world believe in them also."—Globe.

Right you are again Mr. Sanctimonious Hypocrite, but didn't he draw seven thousand a year while at it? He made a couple of millions on the side and incidentally and time to dally with his friend's wife? The workman is worthy of his hire (everywhere but in politics) and no more.

"If the desirable end was so easily attained why did not our Conservative rulers make similar efforts. In the days when the Canadian Pacific was passing its dividends, and settlers were pouring out instead of pouring into the West?"—Globe.

First because the Canadian boys had not mistreated the soil of South Africa with their blood and adventure. Canada as Sir Oysterist Laurier could never do with his eloquent hypocrisy. Second, because the wild cheap lands of the United States had not all been taken up, and, third, because the Canadian West had not proven its merit by the exportation of pioneer farmers from Manitoba prior to 1890 as it did immediately afterwards. Leaving the Americans who sought cheap lands, the Britisher who became interested in Western Canada from the brave boys that Laurier tried to keep out of South Africa, and the settler from older Canada and Manitoba, who heard of it from a tramp, or neighbor, what has Western Canada that she is proud of? In other words, is Western Canada, at present, to know proud of the people the Atlantic Trading Company brought to it?

"What German immigration there was went to the United States, where a large German element had settled during the past generation. It was vitally important that a portion of this desirable stream should be turned to Canada. An open propaganda being impossible, a secret one was suggested and ultimately adopted. The North Atlantic Trading Company was formed, and in every considerable community on the continent where the promotion of migration was forbidden agents were established, who were paid by results. It is easy now to see the objectionable features of it. In the first place, although it is difficult to respect such illiberal laws, nevertheless it is hard to defend their illiberal breach at the promoting of the executive of a sister nation; and, secondly, it is the domestic objection to the payment of public money to persons whose names cannot be revealed."—Globe.

Precisely so. The German immigration went to the States, where a large German element had settled during the past generation. That is the secret of all immigration. It is a matter of settlement largely. He, his friends and neighbors brings relatives and friends and neighbors, and after the Globe has sneered itself on the results of the work of the Secret Society of sneaks known as the Atlantic Trading Company it will be in order for it to tell its readers how dominantly Anglo Saxons the immigration into Western Canada is. All of which goes to convince the not altogether glibness that the Canadian Government had out the people's money to enhance the population of the United States and bring to that country.

Germans whose relatives had "settled there during the last generation."

"Immigration from the continent began at length to come in large numbers to Canada, and we are still benefiting from the impetus given by the North Atlantic Trading Company's plan."—Globe.

You bet it did, but with the "large numbers" reduced materially and we are still benefiting from the impetus, that is some of us at election time, but the benefit is much like the proverbial jug — all on one side. The Donkeybore are a sample of our benefactors. But the Globe might be expected to defend them, on the principle that religious fanatics of a better flock together.

"It is true that Sir Wilfrid Laurier seemed to communicate to Mr. Borden the names of those to whom payments were made, and, in addition, an officer of the Department whose trustworthiness not even the Opposition would call in question, was sent to the continent and conducted a minute investigation of all the accounts."—Globe.

Yes, Sir Wilfrid, the servant of the people, offered to whisper to Mr. Borden, another servant of the people, the names of the hirelings who had done so well. He paid by the people of Canada for doing this work, but refused to tell the people of Canada through parliament who these recipients were. If the board of directors of the Globe, who are its direct source of revenue asked the editor for information about a subscriber and the editor told them he would whisper the name to the city editor, but otherwise would not tell, we opine, that he would be back sky piloting in a very short time.

THE PLACE OF THE HIGH SCHOOL

(Globe)

Professor Locke, one of the Canadians who have made their mark in the United States, read a suggestive paper at yesterday's meeting of the Dominion Educational Association on the modern trend of high school education. While his remarks had special reference to the state of secondary education in the United States, they were applicable also to the Canadian situation, with such allowances as are made necessary by the fact that the high school in the United States is a municipal institution pure and simple, while in Canada it is part of a Provincial system.

In Dr. Locke's opinion there has been a great change for the better in the attitude of the general public toward the high school in most communities. A few years ago there was a stronger feeling of local pride in the municipal court house and jail than in the high school building, but now better edifices are erected, and in these better work is done. Formerly the high school was regarded as merely a preparatory school for intending college students; now the courses of study are more varied, with a view to affording a training useful to young people about to take up their life work. Formerly the privilege of attending a high school was limited to those who could pass an entrance test of an inflexible kind; now an effort is made to find out by rational methods and careful observations those who are really fit to profit by a high school course, in order that they may not be, by a failure of a few marks in one or two subjects, deprived for a whole year of the chance to receive a higher education.

Dr. Locke's contention was that during the first two years of the high school course the work of the pupil should be general rather than special. The aim should be to make him generally intelligent rather than to make him specially proficient in a small group of subjects. This remark is surely quite as applicable to the upper classes of our high schools. In the United States the whole primary and secondary course taken together is divided into twelve grades, and of these the highest four constitute the high school group. There is no reason in the nature of things why the education given in the fifth classes in our public schools should not be practically identical with and just as effective as that given in the lower high school forms. That part of the course is supposed to be for culture purposes only, because there is no prescribed examination to pass, and the freedom of selection and treatment which this situation makes possible. Average has made a complaint to the pupils and teachers, just as useful and just as enjoyable in the public schools.

Fortune Frowns on Ouida.

It came as a surprise to the world a few days ago when the famous name of Ouida appeared in the British civil list as the recipient of a pension of £750 a year. It is a greater shock to learn that the once brilliant novelist has fallen on evil fortunes, and that the venerable lady of sixty-seven is a person literally short of the bare necessities of life. The Florence correspondent of the Daily Mail sends a pathetic story of the recent life of Mlle. de la Ramée. Only two years ago Ouida occupied a splendid villa at St. Alessio, Locca, where she was known as "Lady of the Dogs," as she invariably had a large number around her. On one occasion she gathered together all the dogs in Locca, and gave them milk, bread and meat, paying a big bill for this canine banquet, at a time when she herself was so pressed for money that she had gone without food for whole days. Frequently her own servant had to appeal to the owner of the villa for food for her mistress.

The proprietor of the villa eventually turned Ouida out of the house. The novelist brought suit and won her case in three courts, but the legal experience still further depleted her slender purse. She took a smaller villa, but again her lack of practical knowledge got her into difficulties financially and one night she spent on the sea shore with only dogs for company.

Her maid took Ouida to the maid's mother's cottage at Monti, where the novelist remained for some months, having during her night on the seashore contracted a cold, which impaired her health generally, and caused the loss of the sight of one eye and difficulty in hearing. Last February Ouida took rooms at a hotel in Viareggio, where she stayed till last Saturday, when financial stress again overtook her, she again had to leave her room, to the hospitality of her former maid's mother, at the village of Massarosa, where she is now living. When the correspondent went to see her Ouida said out in a tone saying: "I am only here for a few days and see no one. Write what you desire to say by post."

Ouida rarely goes out of doors and has few visitors. Her passion for dogs is not diminished one jot, though now she possesses only three. She has been heard to say that life would be useless misery without dogs. In Florence, in her happier days, when her literary earnings enabled her to spend money without stint, she had always at least thirty dogs besides forty horses. The news of the granting of the pension has aroused much interest. It is known that the novelist once went three days absolutely without food through sheer want.

Strathcona Baseballers Defeat Capitals in a One Sided Game by a Score of 10-1.

There were all kinds of fireworks at the exhibition grounds last night. The occasion was a so-called baseball match between the old rivals, Strathcona and Edmonton, in which the locals romped home easy winners by 10-1. There was a fair crowd in attendance and all enjoyed the game, except, perhaps the Edmonton team.

Magri was in the firing line for the Capitals, and was pummeled all over the lot. The locals took a great liking to his twisters but were unable to score until the sixth inning.

Then the above-mentioned fireworks commenced. McLaughlin, the first man up, started the good work by banging out a three-bagger. That set the beginning of the end. Wiley hit for two and then the merry-go-round started. His came thick and fast and the Edmonton fielders were kept busy dodging the mile a minute liners which flew from their bats. The entire team batted and McLaughlin came up for a second time, again pounding out a three-sacker.

When at last Edmonton did retire to the side, the locals had notched nine runs, and had the game clinched. Magri was chased to the woods and Wiley went in. He did a little better, although they scored one run.

McLaughlin was on the slab for Strathcona and was as hard to find as a real estate man in Edmonton these days. He had the Capital batters guessing, and the way in which he made them fan the atmosphere was most instructive and interesting. He received good support, Farley and Bailey especially holding their positions well. Miller, behind the bat, used good judgment, but did not have a throw to second. The Capitals were tally game in the fourth and it was scored by Somers a Strathcona man loaned to them; so it was Strathcona all around.

Mr. W. E. Hay, formerly of Strathcona, inspired the game to the entire satisfaction of both teams.

To-night Wetaskiwin and Edmonton play. Wetaskiwin beat Strathcona 12-1 and Strathcona beat Edmonton 10-1, so somebody with plenty of time had better figure out by what score Wetaskiwin will beat Edmonton.

GRADUATION GOWNS.

What Materials to Select For These Important Costumes.

What materials and styles of gowns to select for the graduation exercises are problems that are already perplexing high school girls who finish their course the last week in June. While naturally is the popular color that all are agreed upon, but as to the kind of materials to choose and the neckline to use for the frocks there are no such definite rules to follow; and each girl is left to satisfy her own desires and to get what is most becoming and within the limits of her spending money.

GRADUATION GOWN.
Since soft, clinging materials are favorites this season young girls will find that in buying veils, tulle or net for their dresses they are not only securing sheer veils that are best suited to their ages, but are also getting those that are most worn now.

The style of a commencement gown should be in keeping with the wearer's height, the fashion of hairdress and with her age, so that the model suits each young woman.

According to the individual taste, a frock may be exceedingly simple, with long or three-quarter length sleeves and high neck; or it may be quite decorative, provided the trimmings are suitable and are made of ribbons, sheer lace, pompons or delicate flowers, such as wild roses in light pink, lilacs of the valley or forget-me-nots.

Three in Motion.

"Does your wife have a great deal of trouble getting servants?"

"Well, that depends upon what you mean by 'trouble.' She always has 'the servants'—one at the house, one out and one coming."

Around the City.

Mrs. P. E. Lewis and daughter are here on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Flavin.

Jerry Daly and family will leave for the coast tomorrow morning where they will reside permanently.

Inspector Turnbull's family have been spending a few weeks at Mountainville and will return in a few days.

A very fine driver horse will be sold without reserve on the market square, Edmonton, on Saturday next, by Seton Smith, in the market square, Edmonton. Trial can be had before that day by visiting to W. A. Jackson, Colman's stable, Strathcona.

Mr. Seton Smith will sell by auction, without reserve, on the market square, Edmonton, on Saturday next, one carload of saddle horses and ponies. In the lot are some mares with foals and bred again to a thoroughbred stallion.

A lawn social under the auspices of the Young Men's club of Knox church was held last evening on Mr. A. Dugan's lawn, which was beautifully decorated. A large number of people attended and were entertained with music, the fire brigade band having been engaged. Ice cream and cake and other seasonable refreshments were served. The committee having charge of the arrangement consisted of Messrs. H. P. Lewis, John Dunn, James Dunn and John Adkins.

The absence of Sanitary Inspector Turnbull from his usual round is not due to the fact that he has been asleep at the switch. He has been looking after the establishment of the isolation hospital out on Richmond Park and has it all in readiness for any outbreak of smallpox or other equally dangerous disease, which it is hoped will not occur.

Inspector Turnbull reports with much pleasure that only one case of measles exists in the city at the present time. This fact speaks well for the sanitary condition of the city and is a splendid recommendation for the manner in which the sanitary bylaws are carried out.

T. W. Stack, a resident of Fraser Avenue, has made a complaint to the Journal that he was wrongly accused of misusing animals (horses), which, having purchased in Strathcona, he was driving home. He asserts that he was not responsible for any cruelty, and that, although the Humane Society's officer practically admitted this, he was subjected to the outlet to training that any man of spirit would naturally resent. While he has no wish to cast any reflection on the police, he thinks that a little common sense might be exercised. Surely, he says, Strathcona does not expect a man going over there to buy bronchos to bring a baby carriage and rabbit along.

The above item in this morning's Journal arose over the fact that a complaint had been made to the police that a man was abusing a couple of bronchos he was taking over the river. The police investigated and found that the man was not abusing the bronchos, but that he was taking them over the river. The police investigated and found that the man was not abusing the bronchos, but that he was taking them over the river.

The slay stab at Strathcona in the ten cents of having a soap peddler act as reporter.

CHRONKES.

Every cow in the city has cut the mayor out of her visiting list over that pound business.

That All-Rite route seems to be fatigued.

We presume it would be the height of folly to ask that the street crossings into which a rig falls with such a gall skeleton that these days should be levelled up.

We have been handed a ladies' collar and would be delighted to get the neck to which it belongs. It was found near the camp of a number of hangers in the west end of the city. We propose submitting the sample to some competent physician to discover if there were any signs of hydrophobia on the part of the person whose teeth evidently worried the collar before it came into our possession.

A writer in a contemporary says: "As certain as the magnet attracts steel." If we were Scotch we might consider that a dirty personal reference. It might also apply to that Dominion Steel lunch.

Mayor vs. Aldermen

That Cow Bylaw causes a Clash

There was a merry war on this morning over the City Pound Bylaw. Mr. Wapshott, the corporation Pound-Master, had an interview with Mayor Mills yesterday and at the Mayor's urgent request he stated and explained his own wish and judgment, appointed Hauber. He was requested to make a statement to the press that he had made the appointment. He also informed Alderman Crawford and Elliott, the only aldermen at present in town, of the action, and they immediately ordered him that Hauber could not act if they could prevent it, and they took the instructions which Wapshott had made out for Hauber and refused to sanction the appointment. The Mayor and Wapshott had an interview and his worship claimed that any other man would do as well as Hauber so long as he enforced the bylaw, but that it was his sworn duty to enforce it and he would do it at all hazards.

Alderman Elliott and Crawford take the ground that the actions of Hauber, if persisted in, might involve the city in a case for damages and they protest against any action that might so result. Wapshott put the finishing touches on the arguments in the case, by declaring that he will enforce the bylaw in its judgment for the best interests of the city, and when enough Aldermen forgetful to make a quorum the Alderman board can have his resignation. He believes with the Chronicle, the discretion should be exercised in the enforcement of the bylaw and he will be looking after it accordingly.

Hauber asserted during the discussion that there was no money in gathering in isolated cows at six bits apiece, and unless he was allowed to collect them in clusters or words to that effect—life job would be no good to him.

The present position is that Wapshott will enforce the law in the centre of the city as a result of his own observation, and in the outskirts when complaints are made, but the bylaw will be maintained.

Dressing of Babies.

Dr. Alice Perry gives some remarkably good advice upon the upbringing of babies. In God Homekeeping she says:

"Only two rules are necessary in the clothing of a child during the first few years of his life. Dress him warmly and loosely. It is a great blessing to realize that the long and heavy skirts are a thing of the past. Now the long clothes are of reasonable length and weight and are soon changed for the short skirts which allow the little limbs free play. Kicking is the most important part of a baby's exercise."

Loose Wrist Bag.

Lovely little things ever come to make the gown more feminine than before. The fact that wrist bag covered with milique lace and lined with silk to match the gown can be mentioned as one of those fascinating little things which every woman would like. Those who make these bags at home can select for a pattern a circle as large as a ten pence. Two stiff pieces of material are covered with lace over silk, and the bag is finished by an application of lace where the pieces join. All the necessities for a vanity bag are fitted within.

 without reserve on Saturday, July 20th,
 Edmonton, in the market square.
 Trial can be had before that day by applying to W. A. Jackson, Colman's

Mr. Seton-Smith will sell by auction without reserve on the market square, Edmonton, on Saturday next,
 one carload of saddle horses and ponies.
 In the lot are some mares with foals and bred again to a thorough blood stallion.

A lawn social under the auspices of the Young Men's club of Knox church was held last evening on Mr. A. B.
 Davis' lawn, which was beautifully decorated. A large number of people attended and were entertained with music. The fire brigade band having been engaged. Ice cream and cake and other seasonable refreshments were served. The committee having charge of the arrangements consisted of Messrs. R. E. Lewis, John Dunn, James Dunn and John Irvine.

The absence of Sanitary Inspector Turnbull from his usual round is not due to the fact that he has been as-sleep at the switch. He has been looking after the establishment of the hospital out on Richmond Park and has it all in readiness for any outbreak of smallpox or other especially dangerous disease, which is hoped will not occur.
 Inspector Turnbull reports with much pleasure that only one case of measles exists in the city at the present time. This fact speaks well for the sanitary condition of the city and is a splendid recommendation for the manner in which the sanitary bylaw are carried out.

T. W. Slack, a resident of Fraser Avenue, has made a complaint to the Journal that he was wrongfully accused of misusing animals (brochured), which, having purchased in Strathcona, he was driving home.
 He asserts that he was not responsible for any cruelty, and that, although the Humane Society's officers practically admitted this, he was subjected to the ordeal of training which any man of spirit would naturally resent. While he has no objection to such a training, he thinks that a little common sense might be exercised. Surely, he says, Strathcona does not expect a man going over there to buy brooches to bring a baby carriage and rattle along.

The above item in this morning's Journal arose over the fact that a complaint had been made to the police that a man was selling a number of brochures he was taking over the river. The police investigated and came to the conclusion that there was no unnecessary abuse and allowed Mr. Slack to proceed after he had told the police, which he at first declined to do.

CHRONKES.

Every cow in the city has out the mayor, out of her visiting list that pound business.

That All-Bred route seems to be failing.

We presume it would be the height of folly to ask that the street crossings into which a rig falls with such a dull sickening thud these days
 should be levelled up.

We have been hampered a little by a cold and would be delighted to find the neck to which it belongs. It was found near the camp of a number of hachelers in the west end of the city.
 We propose submitting the sample to some competent physician to discover if there were any signs of hydrophobia in the part of the person whose teeth evidently worked the collar he wore it came into our possession.

A writer in a contemporary says:—
 "As certain as the magnet attracts steel." If we were Schwab we would consider that a dirty personal reference. It might also apply to that Dominion Steel bunch.

Mayor vs. Aldermen

That Cow Bylaw causes a Clash

There was a merry war on this morning over the City Pound Bylaw. Mr.
 Wapshot, the corporation Pound-Master, had an interview with Mayor Mills
 yesterday at the Mayor's urgent request, as he states, and against his own wish and judgment, appointed Hauber, as he is called, to make a statement to the press that he had made the appointment. He also informed Aldermen Crawford and Elliott,
 the only aldermen at present in town,
 of his action, and they immediately ordered him that Hauber could not if they could prevent it and they took the instantaneous which Wapshot had made out for Hauber and refused to sanction the appointment. The Mayor and Wapshot, as an interview and his worship claimed that any other man would do as well as Hauber so long as he enforced the bylaw, but that it was his sworn duty to enforce it and he would do it at all hazards.

Aldermen Elliott and Crawford take
 the ground that the actions of Hauber, if persisted in, might involve the city in a case for damages and they protest against any action that might so result.
 Wapshot put the finishing touches
 on the arguments in the case, by declaring that he will enforce the bylaw in his judgment for the best interests of the city, and when enough Aldermen forego to make a quorum the Aldermanic board can have his resignation.
 He believes with the Chronicle, that discretion should be exercised in the enforcement of the bylaw and he will be governed accordingly.

Hauber, contented during the discussion
 that there was no money in gathering in isolated cows at six bits apiece, and unless he was allowed to collect them in clusters—or words to that effect—the job would be no good to him.

The present position is that Wapshot
 will enforce the law in the centre of the city as a result of his own observation, and in the outskirts when complaints are made, but the bylaw will be maintained.

Dressing of Babies.

Dr. Alvo Tippet gives some remarkably good advice upon the upbringing of babies. In Good Housekeeping she says:

"Only two rules are necessary in the dressing of a child during the first few years of his life. Dress him warmly and loosely. It is a great blessing to believe that the long and hot skirts are a thing of the past. Now the long clothes are of reasonable length and weight and are soon changed for the short skirts which allow the little limbs free play. Kicking is the most important part of a baby's exercise."

A Lice Wrist Bag.

Lately little things now come to make the gown more feminine than before. The fat lace wrist bag covered with antique lace and lined with silk to match the gown can be mentioned as one of those fascinating small things which every woman would like. Those who make these bags at home can select for a pattern a circle as large as a tea plate. Two stiff slices of pasteboard are covered with lace over silk,
 and the bag is finished by an application of lace where the lace is left. All the necessities for a vanity bag are fitted within.
